With its distinctive green and white awnings, the Seegarten fits right into Seefeld, its hip locale. A three-minute walk from the opera house and a few steps from the lake, this is an extremely stylish place to stay when budgets are tight. An airy, easy-going atmosphere prevails. Peter Berkemer, the proprietor, may greet you personally in his blue jeans and work-shirt. But he is usually busy in the hotel's Italian restaurant, the very popular Latino (for which you will need to book in advance, as guests do not get priority).

Wide wooden floorboards sweep through the hallways. Guestrooms are light and roomy, fitted with rattan and Italian designer furniture, antique Swiss tourism posters and fresh flowers. Even the smallest room has a queen-sized bed and ample space for working.
